CITY GUIDE
TOWN OF AARAU

For me, Aargau has everything you could possibly need just around the corner: recreation areas, shopping possibilities, perfect traffic links and a range of cultural opportunities. My favourite places are: the Seerose lido at Lake Hallwil and the old town of Aarau where I find something new and exciting every time I am there.

PRESIDENT
AARGAU TOURISM

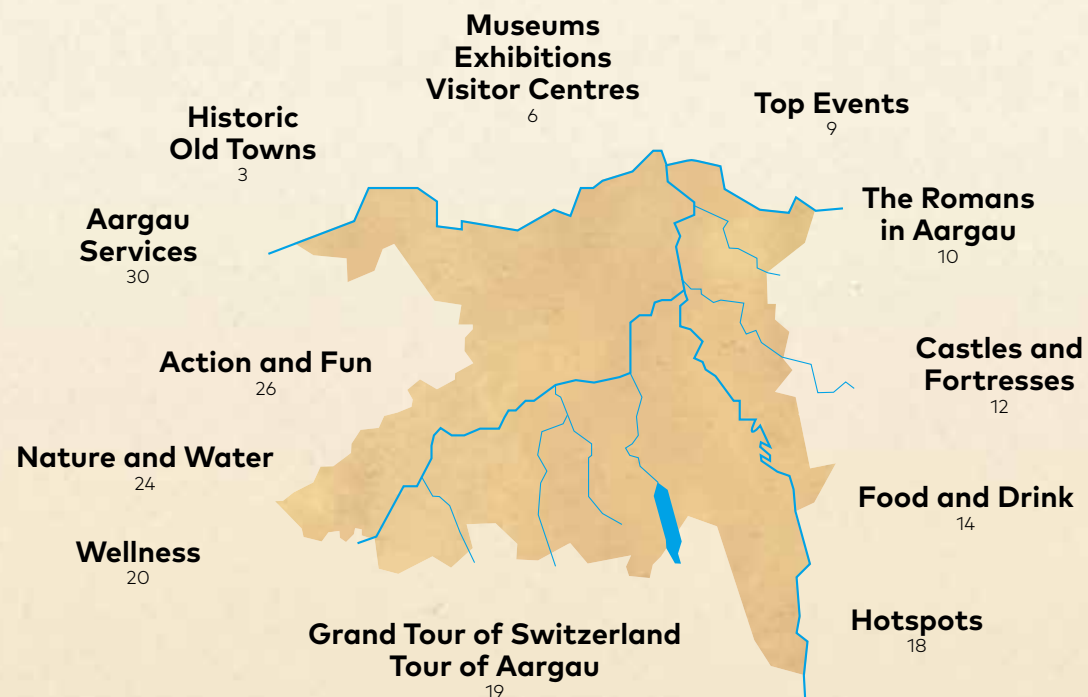

My canton opens up a number of perspectives and gives me the chance to take part in diverse activities. Basically just outside my own front door, I can indulge myself in culture, nature, sport, history and innovation. And in the process I meet people who are further developing the diversity of Aargau with joy, passion and expertise.
Aargau – my home!

SWITZERLAND EXPERT
SWISS TOURISM

The greatest possible diversity in a small space! Countryside and culture! Caribbean sunsets over Lake Hallwil, the expanse of the Freiamt, the rushing of the midland rivers, the proud castles and fortresses, the beneficial and curative thermal water, the fine, compact old towns ... and probably the area with the most festivals in Switzerland! My Aargau – the place to live in and explore!

Why Visit Aargau?

Fascinating landscapes, beautiful tourist attractions as well as exciting places are all part of the diversity of the canton. As far back as the Roman days, people were settling in Aargau and the Habsburgs established their family seat here before going on to creating their empire.

At the Heart of Things

Encounters

When you are out shopping, there is always time for a quick chat with the lady at the market stall who has an exciting new recipe for you to try out. A surprise meeting with friends is fun and the perfect opportunity to catch up on things while you watch the hustle and bustle in the streets.

The historic old town is still fast asleep but the industrious salesmen are already at their work, setting up their market stalls. Vegetables, fruit, meat, flowers and lots of regional specialities are on offer. Soon the alleyways are full of the delicious scent of fresh herbs, warm bread just out of the oven and aromatic cheese, tempting the first visitors to do their weekly shopping.

Aargauer Kunsthaus, Aarau

Culture

Vibrant colours and curious shapes unite to create a breathtaking picture; they invite you to pause for a moment to mull things over or find inspiration. On closer inspection, the finer details in the picture reveal the artist's signature. The story behind the picture is gradually becoming clear. In the room next door, you will be transfixed by a floral interpretation of a work made of blossoms, branches and leaves which is a true joy for both eyes and nose. Enjoy coffee and cake in the museum café and muse on the works of art you have seen, exchanging ideas and mentally making drafts of your own works.

May procession in Aarau

Customs

Happy sounds resound through the alleyways of the historic old town, interested spectators line the streets and watch the colourful procession of orchestra and festively clad children. Intricate circlets of flowers colourfully shine on the heads and on the brilliantly white dresses of the proud schoolchildren. Every year, the historic old towns in the canton celebrate one festival after another, keeping traditional, unique customs alive and encouraging everyone to join in the festivities.

Night watchman tour, Bremgarten

City Tours

Long before the busy market life begins, the night watchman, armed with halberd and horn, does his nightly rounds through the alleyways and along the walls of the historic old town. The blood-curdling screams of prisoners can be heard from the dungeon in the city tower and dubious characters scurry around in the shadows of the night. Many a visitor's blood runs cold, but the night watchman continues unperturbed in the light of his lantern, ensuring law and order.

Museums, Exhibitions and Visitor Centres

The small plates holding exquisite pralines and crisp chocolate neapolitans go round on the conveyor belt. Skewers bearing colourful pieces of fruit are waiting to be dipped in the sweet chocolate fountain. The Chocolat Frey Visitor Centre invites you to enjoy a delicious taste experience and make surprising discoveries in the world of chocolate.

There is a lot of loud giggling to be heard when children generate energy on the slide in the Umwelt Arena Schweiz. But you will only hear the squeaking of tyres when Segways, e-bikes and electric vehicles compete on the indoor run. This is where subjects such as sustainability, renewable energy and nature can be experienced.

From casting a church bell or making a straw hat through the history of tobacco down to the deep system of passageways under the town of Aarau, more than 70 museums and exhibition centres in Aargau open up their doors and gates. They take you on exciting journeys through time to long forgotten objects, crafts and languages.

Landmarks, Bad Zurzach

Drilling for Salt

The five 17-metre high towers proudly rise from the ground. Up until 1970, people would drill here for salt and it was then that they discovered hot spring water. Today, they are landmarks of an important sector of industry in Aargau. There is a good reason why salt used to be counterbalanced by gold. Whether in nature, the kitchen, in medicine or in the winter on icy roads – our life is inextricably linked to this natural substance.

Stapferhaus Lenzburg

Answering Difficult Questions

What do we mean by Heimat (a German term incorporating home and a sense of belonging)? What does money do to us? Why are we always running out of time? And what does truth mean? The exhibitions at Stapferhaus focus on controversial subjects and invite visitors to enjoy an interactive discovery tour. The cultural institution in Lenzburg encourages visitors to question the familiar, make discoveries on their own and take their own stance.

Invention

The History of Aluminium Foil

Everyone knows the soft rustle of shiny foil when a sandwich is unwrapped or a piece of tasty chocolate enjoyed.

On 15 April 1905 the patent for producing this well-known silver paper was awarded to Heinrich Alfred Gautschi from Aargau. The entrepreneur born in Menziken developed a rolling mill for what was referred to as a paper or book rolling procedure in his company. This involved rolling a thin sheet of aluminium, then dividing it into two halves, laying them on top of each other and rolling them again. The process was repeated until there was a package of 64 foil sheets. The new kind of foil was first used in particular for packaging, replacing tin which had been the metal of choice to date. From 1911 the company founded by the Swiss pioneer, Aluminiumwarenfabrik Gontenschwil AG, started producing other products made from aluminium.

Aargau is and always has been an innovative canton. Today this can be seen from the numerous inventions from the past, as well as in modern locations such as the PSI, Park Innovaare and the Hightech Zentrum.

Festivals & Events: Celebrating Together

TOP EVENTS

presented by Markus Kocher, AZ editor

Natural paradise, the canton for hiking and cycling, a canton of culture – there is virtually no other canton in Switzerland which has as much to offer as the regions of 'carrot country'. And what a lot of visitors do not know: Aargau has made a name for itself as a festival and event region far beyond the borders of the canton.

BOSWIL SUMMER

This is something a long way up my personal best-of list. The atmospheric classic festival brings world-class artists as well as young, creative musicians together and is an indisputable highlight of the Swiss festival scene.

When: June/July Where: Künstlerhaus Boswil More: www.kuenstlerhausboswil.ch

GP GIPPINGEN

I am also a regular guest at GP Gippingen: the four-day sports event and fair is the largest sports event in Aargau, attracts several hundred cyclists every year and has been held since 1964.

When: June Where: Gippingen More: www.gippingen.ch

HEITERE OPEN AIR

A definite must in August is a visit to the Heitere Open Air which is known for its unique and idyllic location. It was voted best Swiss Festival in 2016.

When: August Where: Zofingen More: www.heitere.ch

BRÜCKENSATIONEN RHEINFELDEN

The Heitere Open Air is followed directly by the street theatre festival in Rheinfelden. In the middle of August, professional artists from all over Europe attract thousands of visitors to the old Rhine Bridge, the island and the bridge heads with acrobatics, artistry, clownery, theatre, music and street art.

Discovering the History of the Romans

Obediently the Roman soldiers, armed with shield and pilum, march in step through the camp in Vindonissa under the loud orders of the legionnaire.

In the arena, the experienced leader teaches his entourage techniques essential for survival in battle and defence in combat. The dull clashing of the pilums and shields echoes from the walls and can be heard from a distance. After the strenuous training, the formation marches in step back to the camp to prepare a delicious meal. They eat sitting around a pleasantly warm, crackling fire. At the end of the evening, the soldiers listen to the rousing stories of the experienced legionnaire from his time as a fighting compatriot. Just before the fire dies out, the exhausted warriors retire to their straw mattresses to rest.

A DREAM COME TRUE

*A story by Dr. Angela Dettling,
Head of History Mediation, Museum Aargau*

[aargautourismus.ch/
erleben/
schloesser-burgen](http://aargautourismus.ch/erleben/schloesser-burgen)

You are bound to be familiar with the situation when relatives visit you from abroad. You think about what their interests are and which places you would like to show them. I certainly had such an experience just recently. My relatives from Innsbruck, Tyrol, visited myself and my family. Until then they had only heard that I work in the Museum Aargau at its various sites of the living past. But they had never actually seen one of them. So I was determined to show them Aargau and at least a few of the highlights!

Since I knew that Innsbruck had been an important place for the Habsburgs, I decided that the focus of the day trip was to be this noble family. After all, Innsbruck passed into the hands of the Habsburgs in around 1363 and “our“ Frederick IV, duke of Austria, who had lost Aargau to the Swiss in 1415, made the town his residence in 1420. Everyone knows the “golden roof“ in the old town and the Court Church with the grave of Emperor Maximilian I and the 28 bronze figures. So the history of the Habsburgs is thus inextricably linked with Tyrol and Aargau.

Our first stop that morning was Königsfelden Monastery. Another group was on a tour at the same time as we were. They wanted to use a pendulum to find out exactly where the murder of Albrecht I of Habsburg had taken place. But unfortunately they could not agree on where the pendulum moved most. My relatives from Innsbruck even got to take a turn, but without any success. So without any answers to this important question, we journeyed on towards Habsburg Castle.

One member of our party gradually started to get more and more excited. And no, it was not one of the children, but my great uncle Max, born in 1934. He could hardly wait to finally see Habsburg Castle.

As we were walking up to the castle, he suddenly became very solemn. And then up at the ruin the emotion all poured out: it had been his childhood dream to one day visit this castle. And he had never really believed he would live to see the day. They had talked a lot about the “Habichtspurg“ (Habsburg Castle), the family seat of the Habsburgs, at school. About how Radbot had lost his hawk hunting and found the spot for his new castle while looking for the bird. A bright smile spread across his face. It was a wonderful moment for us all. His enthusiasm infected all of us and the visit was a total success.

Uncle Max died two years ago. And that makes this memory all the more precious. Whenever I am at Habsburg Castle, I remember him and his happiness that day.

The Tours

The castle gate creaks as it opens and the maid joyfully greets the guests. On the tour, she takes the visitors around the unrivalled castle gardens with their rare plants. The flowers are both a genuine feast for the eyes and an oasis of fragrance. Across the courtyard, you go down into the dark dungeon where convicts protest their innocence or hatch their plans for revenge. Within the castle, the garrulous maid shows visitors to the living quarters and shares juicy details of their residents with her guests.

The Event Treasure Chamber

There is always something going on in the castles. Merchants bargain with visitors to the Medieval market at the Höhenburg over antique knives, the most elegant fabrics and tasty delicacies. Young knaves try their luck sword fighting with noble knights. Farmers from the region bring their fruit harvest to the moated castle and ask for help making the must. In the castle courtyard of the baroque castle, a falconer presents the daredevil feats of his bird and astonishes the audience.

The Concert-Goer

Strange tones fill the room while the musicians tune their instruments and your ears ask why such an awkward sound should be paid such attention, when suddenly everything falls silent. Expectant looks to the front and the displeasure is forgotten. The tension is palpable, the expectation great. Gentle sounds fill the room, swell and open up a world full of heart-warming and stirring tones.

The Habsburg Trail

The voyage of discovery on the Habsburg Trail takes you over gentle hilly landscapes, through colourful forests and past flowering meadows. Breathtaking views invite you to take a short break. On the way, you can experience the moving story of this important noble family at impressive actual locations. Habi von Habsburg has surprising anecdotes to tell along the way. The noble but ever-so-cheeky hawk appears at regular intervals along the route and plays its part in making this walk a fantastic experience.

The Closer the Better

ALBI VON FELTEN

The renowned chef and passionate host uses regional products and elaborate specialities in his taste empire.

Wine

A very deep red juice gently flows into the round-bodied glass. Your nose is treated to the fragrance of fruity essences mixed with woody overtones. Your eyes close – a first sip. The wine gently trickles down your throat and makes you feel beautifully warm inside.

Albi von Felten: Aargau is full of young, innovative wine-growers who are rocking the Swiss wine scene with their passion and fantastic ideas. Some of the wine-growers are actually in the Swiss "Top 100". Aficionados class their wines as insider tips and the wines are always there or thereabouts in international awards. For me it is really fun when you can serve your top regional cuisine with first-class local wines.

Specialities

One jet black, the other golden yellow. Totally different in colour, so different in taste, and yet both so desirable. We are talking about truffles and saffron. The black diamond grows in the idyllic Fricktal valley and the violet crocus in the sweeping Bünztal valley.

Albi von Felten: I love preparing a truffle omelette in truffle season. A simple idea, but the aroma really unfolds with the egg. Another top-quality product is saffron. I like soaking the saffron threads in a little white wine for about half a day before I actually use them in a dish. Beef ragout braised in Aargau red wine is the perfect accompaniment for saffron potato purée. Another of my favourites is a traditional Aargau saffron soup with pieces of trout.

Chocolate

The foil rustles when you open it and the fine smell of cocoa makes your mouth water. The first piece melts on your tongue and mild nutty aromas, paired with fruity sweetness, will delight your taste buds. Chocolate is spiritual soul food.

Albi von Felten: There are plenty of very good, creative chocolatiers in Aargau. We have come up with a "plum stone", a praline made with our own plum schnapps, and also serve a home-made venison bratwurst with high-percentage grand-cru chocolate. Insider tip for your BBQ party: slice open a dried plum, fill it with a little high-percentage grand-cru chocolate and then wrap it in a slice of bacon. Grill until crispy on your BBQ in a tray.

Rapeseed Oil

The rapeseed oil is golden-yellow in a dish. It was gently cold pressed from rape seeds from Aargau's Seetal valley. The fine nutty, slightly buttery taste is an absolute delight when combined with bread.

Albi von Felten: It's the same whatever you are talking about - the quality of the product is decisive. We produce a genuinely top-quality rapeseed oil which has already been awarded gold three times. If you use a really fine rapeseed oil, you will notice the difference immediately in the flavour. And apart from that, rapeseed oil is one of the most valuable and healthy oils worldwide.

Vegetables

A sea of colours, featuring orange carrots, blue potatoes, red tomatoes from Zurich and lush green lettuce, is a beautiful tribute to traditional vegetables. ProSpecieRara's annual seedling market is always good for a surprise.

Albi von Felten: I have my favourite vegetables in every season - for example local asparagus in spring, the massive range of tomatoes available in the summer, salsify and 'Küttiger Rübli' carrots in the autumn, and the various kinds of cabbage, such as kale and sweetheart cabbage, in the winter.

Meat

Delicious porcini salami from Mangalica pigs, nutty water buffalo sausage, smoky Jura ham, marinated in 'Chriesimaische', and spicy chilli salami from Galloway cattle – Aargau has a surprising number of specialities.

Albi von Felten: I'm a great fan of the Mangalica pigs. They really look pretty amusing with their long bristles, some of which are even curly. They need plenty of space to exercise and are outside all year. The meat is really tasty. Incidentally, the race is supported by ProSpecieRara.

ACTION and Fun

Thirteen-year-old Sven races up to the ramp on his scooter, jumps off and sails for a brief moment through the air. "In Rolling Rock, I can meet up with my friends, try out lots of things and just let off steam the way I want," says the bright boy excitedly of his leisure time activities.

aargautourismus.ch/erleben

1 Rolling Rock

There is a lot of activity in the extensive hall. Skaters work on their tricks on the big skating track, on the upper floor inline hockey players chase the puck to and fro, and on the trampoline teenagers are engaged in a competition in who can do the best somersault. But it is not only skaters and trampoline enthusiasts who get their money's worth in the unique skate and sport centre. Breakdancers and climbers are just as welcome here as fans of freerunning and stand-up paddling. These real adventures really get under your skin.

2 Climbing Park Rütihof

Swinging and climbing under the trees - almost like a monkey - with all your senses tested. Different trails lead you over wobbly rope bridges and up tricky rope ladders, promising a total thrill. Travelling through the treetops is the perfect end to an eventful day.

3 Tubing Fun

A successful change from sunbathing is an action-packed river trip on the Reuss, sometimes calm and sometimes wild. You start off gently going past idyllic banks before the wild surf-riding starts. Talking over a BBQ at the end means you can relive it all at your leisure.

4 Ebianum

With a quiet crunching noise, the digger's scoop digs into the ground and fills up with golden sand. By using the joystick, make the grappler lift, turn and position itself over the dumping spot. Another touch and the fine-grained stone gushes out of the scoop down to the ground. This is where memories of childhood come to life.

5 Cinema 8

Check in and get ready for take-off - built in the style of an airport, with modern auditoriums, American bowling and outstanding 7D cinema, Cinema 8 offers an exceptional experience world. Alongside rousing films, you will not miss out on culinary pleasure thanks to a number of themed restaurants and bars.

6 Papa Moll Land

The popular comic figure is worked up! His dog Tschips has disappeared. By solving tricky riddles and clues, people of all ages can help him find his dog and win a reward. This exciting paper chase is suitable for pushchairs which means even the smallest of children can take part.

7 Heitern Wildlife Park

There is steam coming out of the expanded nostrils of the young stag. He does not really trust the small figure waiting at the enclosure. But that piece of bread in the child's hand simply smells too good. A tentative step forwards, another one - the king of the woods gently takes the treat into his mouth and enjoys it.

8 Dinosaur Museum

Razor-sharp teeth and really hard bones - the skeleton of the Plateosaurus in the Dinosaur Museum is more than 200 million years old and bears witness to the historical past of the dinosaurs. On the dinosaur educational trail, people of all ages travel back in time and themselves become fossil hunters.
